2020 Applicant Guide for AMS Stream – Round 3

Program Overview

The RVTS is a vocational training program, which is available to doctors who under ordinary circumstances could not complete vocational training except by leaving their communities. The three to four-year program allows doctors to access vocational training while they continue to provide general medical services to their communities. The community retains their doctor while the doctor receives the benefits of vocational training.

The program has 2 streams of trainees:

- The Remote Stream, for doctors working in remote & rural Australia
- The AMS Stream, providing support specifically for doctors in Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Services (ACCHS ¹)

Both streams train towards fellowship qualifications of the RACGP and/or ACRRM. The training includes webinars, education workshops, remote supervision and individualised training advice.

The AMS Stream has an intake of 10 doctors annually. RVTS will run three application rounds for the 2020 intake. Up to six positions will be filled in Round 1. The remaining positions will be filled in Rounds 2 and 3.

At the time of applying, applicants must indicate whether their intention is to train towards fellowship of ACRRM or fellowship of RACGP, or both. Their training location must meet the requirements of the relevant College. If an applicant chooses to train towards both fellowships, their location must meet the requirements of both Colleges.

Doctors who have Fellowship of ACRRM and/or RACGP are ineligible to apply for the RVTS training program.

1. An Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Service (ACCHS) is a primary health care service initiated and operated by the local Aboriginal community to deliver holistic, comprehensive, and culturally appropriate health care to the community which controls it (through a locally elected Board of Management).

4. For Doctors with Limited Registration

- The doctor must be on the Australian Medical Council Standard Pathway² and have successfully completed Australian Medical Council part 1 exam; AND
- Limited registration must have first been granted on or after 30 January 2018; AND
- The doctor must be at Level 3 or 4 supervision. Levels 1 and 2 are not eligible for the RVTS training program.

Only applicants already working in their location are eligible to apply, and they must remain in that location throughout their training. An applicant who, at the time of applying, is on leave of absence from their eligible location while undertaking accredited advanced specialised training is eligible to apply. The applicant must return to their eligible location prior to commencement of training. Evidence must be provided that the applicant will be returning to their location. If an applicant changes location prior to commencement of training, the training position will be forfeited.

Applications are accepted from Australian citizens, permanent residents and temporary residents. Temporary residents should have adequate time left on their visa to complete the training program.

Preference will be given to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander doctors.

Enrolment in other vocational training programs

All applicants are required to indicate whether they are currently enrolled in another vocational training program.

Doctors who have applied to the Australian General Practice Training Program (AGPT) for training commencing in 2019 must indicate this in their RVTS application.

Doctors who have applied or are currently enrolled in AGPT or the ACRRM Independent Pathway or the RACGP General Practice Experience Pathway or RACGP Practice Experience Program (PEP), must upload with their application documents, a statutory declaration of their intention to resign.

Applicants in other vocational training programs which lead to specialist medical registration outside of the RVTS program such as Fellowship of the Australasian College for Emergency Medicine (FACEM) etc. must obtain approval from RVTS to remain in that program prior to commencement of training with RVTS.

RVTS training must not be compromised by a registrar being enrolled in another vocational training program.

College Exams

Applicants must provide details of all attempts at any segments of ACRRM or RACGP exams, including date of exam and the outcome.

² See <http://www.amc.org.au/assessment/pathways/standard>

Applicants need to be aware of the RACGP restriction on exam attempts. From 2019, candidates will have six enrolments over a period of three years to pass all three Fellowship exam segments (not including periods of approved leave).

The RACGP has a policy of RVTS registrars not commencing any exam segments until after 12 months from commencement of training, this will reduce time available to complete all exam segments for those who have already had previous attempts. Therefore these requirements may affect an applicant's eligibility to enter the RVTS program and gain fellowship with RACGP if they have attempted any RACGP exam segments from 1st January 2019 onwards.

This exam restriction only affects those undertaking a fellowship with RACGP and not for those completing the ACRRM fellowship.

Ranking of applicants for interview

At the close of applications, all applicants meeting the eligibility criteria will be ranked to develop a list of applicants for interview. Applicants will be ordered sequentially by each of the following steps:

A. Indigenous Doctors³

Indigenous doctors will be ranked higher than non-indigenous doctors.

B. RVTS Category

Following on from ranking by A, applicants will be ordered by RVTS Category where applicants meeting Category 1 criteria will have a higher ranking.

The RVTS categories are as follows:

- Category 1 Australian or New Zealand citizen or Australian permanent resident, with General Registration with AHPRA.
- Category 2 A temporary resident who has applied for permanent residence and has General Registration with AHPRA.
- Category 3 An Australian or New Zealand citizen or Australian permanent resident who has Limited Registration for Area of Need with AHPRA.
- Category 4 A temporary resident who has Limited Registration for Area of Need with AHPRA.

C. MMM Classification

Following on from ranking by A, and B, applicants will be ranked via MMM classification. Applicants from MMM7 will be ranked highest, followed by applicants from MMM6, MMM5, MMM4, MMM3 then MMM2.

Acceptance for Interview and Situational Judgment Test:

The highest ranked applicants will then be invited to participate in the Situational Judgement Test (SJT) and interview process for a place in the AMS Stream.

	Round 3

Number of applicants to be interviewed	TBC

³ Aboriginal people can apply to their Local Aboriginal Land Council or an Aboriginal community organisation for a 'Confirmation of Aboriginality' or a 'Certificate of Aboriginality'. These documents state that the person is known to identify as an Aboriginal person and is accepted by that community as an Aboriginal person.

The Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Act also applies to people who identify as Torres Strait Islanders.

(Some of the positions on the AMS stream may be filled through the Targeted Recruitment Process, which is focused on designated locations of high workforce needs.)

Where applicants have equal ranking based on the above criteria, the RA and RRMA classifications will be used as further ranking criteria.

The Selection Process

Interviews

A panel of RVTS representatives will interview selected applicants by videoconference.

The interview process will allow applicants to demonstrate their suitability for entry into the RVTS training program. Applicants will be assessed against the following criteria, and will be asked to provide examples of their:

1. Interest in and commitment to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health
2. Professional development
3. Communication skills
4. Time management
5. Applied clinical knowledge
6. Willingness to receive feedback and learn from it
7. Ethical practice

Each criterion will be scored from 1 to 7; 1 being significantly below satisfactory; 7 being significantly above satisfactory, 4 being borderline.

Situational Judgement Test

All eligible candidates selected for interview will be required to undertake an online Situational Judgement Test (SJT). The SJT score will contribute to the final score used to rank candidates.

A candidate will be considered unsuitable for RVTS if:

- Their interview score is equal to or less than 31, AND/OR
- Their SJT score is equal to or less than 31

Training places will be offered on the basis of aggregated interview and SJT scores⁴, and satisfactory referee checks. The offer will only apply for the location referred to in the application. If a successful applicant does not commence training in the location referred to in their application, they will forfeit their place on the program.

Additional Points:

- Applicants unsuccessful in Round 1 selection will not be eligible to apply for Round 2.
- Applicants who achieve RVTS minimum selection requirements in Round 1 but not offered a position will automatically be considered for Round 2 if their circumstances have remained the same. Their score from Round 1 will apply for Round 2.
- Applicants not offered an interview in Round 1 must complete an online application for Round 2 and must upload all supporting documents to be considered for Round 2.

Further requirements

All applicants must continue to work in an eligible RVTS location for their training, except for approved hospital training and advanced skills posts. If a successful applicant moves training location, they will forfeit their place in the training program.

⁴ Where candidates have the same aggregated total score and there are greater number of candidates than remaining positions, they will be ranked according to MMM, followed by RA and RRMA classification.

Limited Registration Doctors on the Australian Medical Council Standard Pathway

RVTS requirements are additional to any requirements laid out by AHPRA. Doctors with Limited Registration with AHPRA may have a requirement to obtain General or Specialist Registration within a certain time frame. Training with RVTS does not remove the need to meet this requirement. Doctors who will not be able to complete sufficient training time to gain Fellowship prior to expiry of their medical registration will not be considered for the program. Thus, limited registration must have first been granted on or after 30 January 2018.

Since supervision is usually undertaken remotely, doctors must have a minimum of Level 3 or 4 supervision. Doctors with Level 1 or 2 supervision requirements are ineligible for the RVTS Training Program. It is up to a doctor with Limited Registration to examine their individual registration requirements very carefully and consult with AHPRA prior to joining RVTS.

RVTS will not accept responsibility for loss of registration due to failure to meet Medical Board registration requirements.

Applicants who have Conditions, Undertakings or Reprimands with AHPRA are not eligible to apply.

RVTS provides training toward FRACGP/FARGP and FACRRM. Once Fellowship of ACRRM or RACGP is achieved, doctors with Limited Registration are able to apply to AHPRA for Specialist Registration as a General Practitioner.

In order to legally practise in a broad range of environments General Registration is required. RVTS doctors with Limited Registration may apply for General Registration if they have attained the AMC Certificate and can demonstrate that they have completed the equivalent of an intern year. RVTS doctors with Limited Registration on the AMC Standard Pathway are encouraged to complete their AMC Certificate while training with RVTS.

Termination of Training

RVTS is able to provide the training program as a result of funding from the Australian Government and acknowledges that support. If at any time this funding was to end, then the training may be ended immediately by written notice.

The training may also be brought to an end immediately by RVTS if a doctor undertaking the training does not achieve satisfactory progress or no longer meets location, practice status or medical registration and residency requirements, or there is found to have been a material error in their application.
