

ABOUT COBAR NSW

ABOUT TARGETED RECRUITMENT

The Remote Vocational Training Scheme (RVTS) has expanded its traditional workforce retention and training model by recruiting doctors to targeted remote communities with high medical workforce need.

The aim is to enhance the attractiveness of rural and remote posts to high quality applicants to provide communities with a well-supported and sustainable GP workforce.

The initial pilot of the program in 2018-19 has successfully secured the services of six full-time doctors to six rural and remote communities across Australia.

The training is fully funded by the Australian Government and is a four-year GP training program delivered by Distance Education and Remote Supervision to Fellowship of the ACRRM and/or RACGP.

Cobar Primary Health Care Centre is a modern and well-equipped accredited general practice running under the banner of the NSW Outback Division of General Practice. The centre provides an interpreter if required and an indigenous representative can also be arranged for consultations if needed. The Cobar Primary Health Care Centre doctors pride themselves on their chronic disease management treatment plans. The doctors and nurses tackle chronic disease management for conditions such as asthma, cancer, cardiovascular disease, stroke, diabetes, muscular skeletal conditions and mental health and identify goals, treatment and management plans. Doctors at the centre have adopted the 2000-day model of pregnancy and birth care, which supports women from preconception, through the antenatal period and into birthing, six weeks post-partum and the first 2000 days of life. Cobar's Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander population is 11.8 per cent. Care that is "holistic" in terms of addressing the woman's social, emotional, physical, psychological and cultural needs and expectations.

The modern practice is supported by state of the art telehealth and remote training facilities. The practice provides telehealth consultations with a number of specialist clinicians including psychiatrist, psychologist, rheumatologist, endocrinologist and geriatrician.
