

QUALITY POLICY

Remote Vocational Training Scheme Ltd Training and Retaining Doctors in Australian Communities

The Remote Vocational Training Scheme (RVTS) improves Australian health by training and retaining medical practitioners working in Rural, Remote and First Nation communities under the guiding principle of:

- Facilitation of access to medical education and training in circumstances where it may otherwise not be possible
- Flexibility and innovation in meeting the medical training needs of diverse communities
- Everything we do considers a First Nation perspective

RVTS is committed to fostering a culture of continual improvement across the organisation to meet the needs of all stakeholders.

The ISO 9001:2016 accredited RVTS Quality Management System (QMS) provides for the systematic and continual improvement of the organisation's performance through regular review of its processes. The policy and procedure necessary to achieve required standards are described in the quality system.

RVTS management and staff are responsible for the communication, enthusiastic promotion and implementation of this Quality Policy.

Warning - Uncontrolled when printed! The current version of this document is kept on the RVTS file server.

Authorised by: RVTS Board – March 2018

Original Issue: January 2009 | Previous Version/s: September 2016 / January 2018 | Current Version: 21 January 2020

Maintained by: Quality and Governance Officer | Last Review: January 2020 | Next Scheduled Review: January 2021

Copyright © Remote Vocational Training Scheme Ltd 2020