RVTS TARGETED RECRUITMENT PILOT

The Remote Vocational Training Scheme (RVTS) assists the recruitment of doctors to targeted rural and remote communities with high medical workforce need, by including the RVTS GP Vocational Training program as a component of the doctor recruitment package. Since 2018, RVTS has successfully assisted the recruitment of 29 doctors to 29 rural and remote locations across Australia, including 11 Aboriginal Medical Services.

RVTS Training is a four-year GP and Rural Generalist training program delivered by Distance Education and Remote Supervision leading to Fellowship of the ACRRM and/or RACGP. RVTS Training is fully funded by the Australian Government.

The Targeted Recruitment model has brought workforce stability and enhanced continuity of care to the participating communities, as well as career progression to specialist qualifications for the recruited doctors. The RVTS Targeted Recruitment strategy is an Australian Government Initiative.

Eden is a rural town on the Sapphire Coast with spectacular beaches, located halfway between Sydney and Melbourne and an easy drive to Canberra with a resident population of 3,350 which significant swells during summer holidays. The town is largely reliant on the tourist and fishing industries, boasting the largest fishing port in the State.

Curalo Medical Centre has operated in Eden since 1989 and is a fully accredited multi-doctor GP practice that is also accredited for training Australia's future generation of GPs. The practice has an experienced team of administration and nursing staff offering optimal support for the doctors along with a well-established client base with potential for optimal financial remuneration.

NSWRDN offers study grants and relocation subsidies to doctors relocating to rural areas.
